STATE DOCUMENTS

THE GRINCH STOLE CHRISTMAS

As the holiday season approached, South Carolina libraries received tidings of new belt tightening measures. Faced with declining revenues, continued inflation, and a projected shortfall of $40 million for FY 82, the State Budget and Control Board acted on November 23 to comply with the constitutional mandate that South Carolina operate in the black. The following day instructions were issued to each State agency to reduce its total appropriated funds for fiscal year 81-82 by 2.19%. Indirectly, this action will affect all public libraries, State institutional libraries, TEC libraries, and libraries of publicly supported academic institutions. School libraries will probably share in the reductions in funding for public education.

The reduction applies to each state agency's appropriation for twelve months, requiring cuts of 2.19%; but if calculated on the basis of seven months remaining in the fiscal year, the reduction would be 3.66%. On previous occasions when mid-year budget cuts have occurred, aid to subdivisions and the Educational Finance Act have been excluded. On this occasion the Budget and Control Board has mandated an across the board reduction with only debt service being exempted.

For the State Library, the 2.19% reduction totals $75,046. This comes on top of the 7% personnel reduction of July 1 and the 2-1/2% vacancy factor ($17,620) already imposed for 1981-82. A prorated share of the latest cut, $51,233, will come from State Aid to public libraries with each county's annual allocation being reduced by 2.19%. Most public libraries are expected to make the reduction from the materials budget. For the State Library, the cut must be made largely from personnel funds since operating monies are inadequate to cover the amount.

The State has not yet determined whether the 2.19% reduction will be extended to FY 83 funding. The Budget and Control Board's recommendations to the Ways and Means Committee have been forwarded without revision. The Committee's action on the appropriation bill will presumably be determined by the forecasts made by the Board of Economic Advisors in January and February. Having already launched a campaign for an increase in State Aid for 1983, public library directors and trustees must now direct efforts to retaining the full 1982 funding level for 1983.

On the Potomac front, there was little seasonal cheer to lighten the gloom. Although the Library Services and Construction Act funding was only minimally reduced in the Congressional continuing resolution, the presidential veto makes substantial reductions likely in the next appropriation action. The Education Block Grants are being reduced before they were ever implemented, making the competition for funding between libraries and all other programs more intense than ever. With zero funding already proposed for HEA II-A and HEA II-B programs, the other Higher Education Act library titles will be subject to any across the board reductions.

The Orangeburg-Calhoun Technical College Library recently opened its collection to citizens having public library cards in Orangeburg and Calhoun counties. The loan policy also applies to students presenting valid student ID cards from Claflin College.

FIRST LIBRARY LEGISLATIVE DAY
SCHEDULED FOR FEBRUARY 10

(The following article was submitted by Bill Cooper, Director of the Laurens County Library.)

The Association of Public Library Administrators (APLA) is planning the first annual Library Legislative Day on February 10, 1982. The purpose of Legislative Day is to get library supporters from all over the state (librarians, trustees, friends, users) to convene in Columbia and talk with members of the General Assembly about the importance of adequate state support for both the State Library and local public libraries. We are asking that State Aid be increased to $1.00 per capita this year, and the State Library is asking for certain increases in their state appropriations.

An annual Library Legislative Day will be helpful for library service in many ways. State aid increases probably will not be forthcoming each year, but we can show our legislature that persons from all over the state are interested in South Carolina libraries. We can explain to them the needs of libraries and inform them of the many services we are offering residents of South Carolina. An annual Legislative Day also will provide a focal point around which trustees, friends, and users can rally to become more active on a state-wide basis. Many states, Florida for example, have annual Legislative Days and consider these to be important. For our first Legislative Day to be a success, librarians in each county will have to support it and encourage as many of their local people as possible to attend. The state-wide effort will only be as successful as the sum total of the local efforts in each county.

Plans are to begin the day with a morning coffee with pastries to which all members of the General Assembly will be invited. After the morning session of the Legislature convenes, we will go as a group to the State House and be introduced in both the House and the Senate as a group. People from each county will be encouraged to invite their senators and house members to lunch and make appointments during the day for individual conferences. Packets of information and brochures concerning Legislative Day and with facts and figures concerning the needs of South Carolina libraries will be distributed to each county library before Legislative Day.

Members of the planning committee for Legislative Day include: David Paynter of the Florence County Library and President of APLA; Penny Albright, Kershaw County Library; Sarah McMaster, Fairfield County Library; Jan Buvinger, Charleston County Library; Carl Stone, Anderson County Library; David Warren, Richland County Library; Anthony Messineo, Greenville County Library; Chairman of the Planning Committee and President-Elect of APLA, William Cooper, Laurens County Library; and Betty Callahan and Margie Herron from the State Library.

Professional librarians at the Gregg-Graniteville Library at USC-Aiken have begun teaching the first class in the library instruction course ALIB 101 at the college. Students are using a textbook compiled by the library faculty. The library also conducted a workshop on September 17 for classified employees at the college. Employees were informed of library services, policies, and procedures and toured the library.

PUBLIC LIBRARY STATISTICAL SUMMARY PUBLISHED

The South Carolina State Library has recently published South Carolina Public Library Annual Statistical Summary, FY 81 based on statistics reported by public libraries for the year ending June 30, 1981. The summary contains alphabetical listings and rankings of all public libraries based on twenty-three factors including population, income, circulation, reference, staffing, collection size, and registered borrowers. Please address requests for this publication to Julianne Phillips, Field Service Librarian, South Carolina State Library.

THURMOND PAPERS TO GO TO CLEMSON

United States Senator Strom Thurmond recently announced that he will donate nearly all of his public papers and memorabilia to Clemson University, his alma mater. Senator Thurmond signed an agreement turning his papers over to Clemson during a ceremony held at the R. M. Cooper Library. The Thurmond papers will be housed in a planned multi-million dollar complex which will also contain facilities for performing arts, research, and public service programs. It is anticipated that the Thurmond Center will be built in two stages with funds derived from private sources.

Public Library Notes

Barnwell County: Mr. Joe Wilder, owner and manager of Barnwell radio station WBAW, recently donated a reel-to-reel tape recorder to the library along with 42 tapes of the Lowell Thomas: The Best Years series.

Beaufort County: The Beaufort County Council recently received a $3,200 rural improvement grant from the South Carolina Division of Local Governments. The grant will be used to hire a consultant to survey the county's library system and assess its future needs.

Cherokee County: The library sponsored a genealogy workshop on October 24.

Chesterfield County: State Senator Jack Lindsay and Representative Jean Harris recently presented a check for $25,000 to the Chesterfield County Library Board. The grant was made through the Local Government Discretionary Fund....Young cyclists who participated in a bike-a-thon to raise money for the library building fund collected over $900 for their efforts.

Dorchester County: The Summerville Library conducted a program for parents of pre-schoolers on October 21. Joan Buckar, Assistant Professor at the Baptist College at Charleston, conducted a one-hour workshop designed to help parents instill reading readiness skills in their young children.

Florence County: The new branch library in Olanta was opened on November 1, marked by a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Special guests in attendance were South Carolina Representative Woody McKay, Mayor Kelton Floyd, County Council Chairman Johnnie Powers, and members of the county library board....The county library hosted a 10-hour literacy workshop during November to train volunteer tutors. The workshop was sponsored by the local literacy council.

Laurens County: During October and November, the library sponsored a six-week film series entitled "Vamps and Villains." Classic screen thrillers and film sirens were featured during the series.

Marlboro County: Adult programs held during the fall have included a stress workshop and a program on "Quick Holiday Foods"....Twenty-two original Currier and Ives prints from the collection of the Travelers Insurance Company were exhibited at the library during November and December. The prints were acquired through the assistance of the Midgley Agency in Bennettsville.

Orangeburg County: Paul Deane, Director, and Debra Allan, Extension Librarian, participated in "Leadership Orangeburg," a program sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce designed to develop young leaders in the community.

Richland County: The library prepared booklists on parenthood which are being distributed through local hospitals to the parents of new infants.

Spartanburg County: The library's reference department is now offering online literature searches utilizing Lockheed's Dialog Information Services, Inc. The service, which is currently being offered at no charge, is being funded through a Library Services and Construction Act grant administered by the South Carolina State Library. In connection with the project, a feasibility study is being conducted to determine the need for online search services in the library. At this time, the library is particularly encouraging business, industry, and government personnel to utilize the service, although searches are not limited to those requests.

York County: Construction of the headquarters library building is expected to be completed by December 1. The move into the new building is scheduled for early January.

STORYTELLING WORKSHOP

The storytelling workshop sponsored by the South Carolina State Library and the University of South Carolina School of Librarianship recently ended. Fifteen of the original thirty participants completed all three sessions and will receive a certificate. In order to complete the workshop, participants had to learn two stories, one short and one at least ten minutes in length to present to the group. Those in attendance will testify that the hard work paid off in excellent storytelling, and Mrs. Augusta Baker, workshop leader, and I feel that storytelling will be on the upswing at library programs thanks to the workshop.

The following people completed the requirements for the workshop: Joan Brewer, Allendale County Library; Magdalene Burch, Florence County Library; Kay Collinge, Oconee County Library; Deborah Cooke, Lexington County Library; Aline Crouch, Edgefield County Library; Sally Culp, Spartanburg County Library; Terry Deer, Charleston County Library; Laurie Gentry, Lexington County Library; Margaret Haynes, Laurens County Library; Mary Lou Hiott, Colleton County Library; Yolanda McCormick, Dillon County Library; Jessie McLaurin, Abbeville-Greenwood

Regional Library; Pamela Robinson, Kershaw County Library; Nell Van Hook, Florence County Library; and Geneva Warner, Pickens County Library.

AROUND THE STATE IN CHILDREN'S SERVICES

"At the Movies with Bad Dog," a film series for children from the South Carolina Arts Commission, was sponsored at the Nancy Carson Library in North Augusta by the North Augusta Women's Club. The Club also provided volunteer staff to assist with the program which was held two days weekly during November.

Children's Book Week in Laurens County Library was celebrated with the film, Freaky Friday, at all branches. Special story hours were held for various kindergartens at the library.

Florence County Library Children's Department held a Halloween party with storytelling, crafts, the film, Hansel and Gretel, and a costume contest. The program was held at the headquarters library as well as at the Timmonsville, Pamplico, and Johnsonville branch libraries.

York County Library's Children's Book Week celebration had excellent response to its "count the book bugs" contest and to the film 101 Dalmatians. Children's author Matt Christopher, now living in Rock Hill, talked at a special program about his life, how he became a writer, and how his love for sports formed the basis of his books.

Orangeburg County Library held a special nighttime story hour during Children's Book Week with children wearing nightclothes and bringing stuffed animals.

NEW BIBLIOGRAPHIES OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

At the State Library

- 011.62 Rollock, Barbara. The Black Experience in Children's Books. New York Public Library, 1979.

A revision of the 1971 edition, this new edition covers Blacks in America, the Caribbean, Africa, and England and includes picture books, fiction, and non-fiction.

- 011.62 Opening Doors for Preschool Children and their Parents, 2nd ed. ALA, 1981.

This is a fine basic bibliography of books and non-print materials for young children. Especially useful is the classification of books by type such as picture books, wordless books, ABC books, feelings, and poetry. It includes a list of recommended board books for the youngest children. The list of recordings will provide libraries with a list of approximately 45 titles for young children which could comprise a basic collection.

For Your Consideration

How to Fill an Empty Lap; A Preferred Reading List of Picture Books for Children is a very attractive booklist. The compilers, Terry Lehmann and Joi Nobisso, have chosen approximately 100 favorite books and written perceptive annotations for each. Most of the titles are familiar ones, but there are some lesser known titles that are refreshing to see listed. This list is useful to librarians but perhaps even more so to parents looking for good books to buy or borrow for their children. Done in an attractive, appealing format, it is a good choice for parent shelves. $2.50 plus $.50 for postage and handling from Little Feat, P.O. Box 150, Water Mill, New York 11976.

Children's Choices for 1981, a reprint from the October, 1981 Reading Teacher is an annotated list of books published in 1980, compiled by the International Reading Association and incorporating the opinions of 3,000 children. Free with a self-addressed envelope stamped with 2 oz. first-class postage from Children's Book Council, 67 Irving Place, New York, New York 10003.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY

Libraries not having extensive collections of business directories should take note of the 1982 edition of the National Directory of Addresses and Telephone Numbers. This handy directory provides full address and telephone numbers for over 60,000 organizations, including major U.S. corporations, law and accounting firms, banks, government offices, hotels and resorts, and toll-free numbers, etc. The directory consists of three sections -- a listing of service organizations according to type of service, an alphabetical listing of leading U.S. corporations and a business "yellow pages" listing corporations according to industry.

The paperbound directory is published annually by W.C.C. Directories, Inc. 850 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022. Price: $19.95 plus $2.00 postage and handling.

S.C. FOUNDATION DIRECTORY

Requests for the South Carolina Foundation Directory, published by the S.C. State Library, have markedly increased over the last few months. Due to postal rate increases, the library has had to increase the amount of requested postage from 70¢ to $1.00 per directory. Requests for copies of the directory should be accompanied by $1.00 in stamps addressed to: Anne K. Middleton, South Carolina State Library, Post Office Box 11469, Columbia, South Carolina 29211. Copies of the directory can also be picked up free of charge at the main desk of the State Library. Librarians may want to insert the above information in their copy of the South Carolina Foundation Directory.

REVISED BILL OF RIGHTS STATEMENTS AVAILABLE

The Office for Intellectual Freedom, American Library Association, is making available copies of revised interpretations of the Library Bill of Rights which were adopted during the 1981 annual ALA Conference. The six separate one-page documents, available free on request, concern challenged materials, evaluating library collections, expurgation of library materials, free access to libraries for minors, restricted access to library materials, and statement on labeling. An additional document on "Dealing with Complaints about Resources" may also be requested. For price information on multiple copies, contact Office for Intellectual Freedom, ALA, 50 East Huron Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.
